No problem, this is from an online chemistry dictionary. Sorry for the misunderstanding.

elute vb

(Chemistry) (tr) to wash out (a substance) by the action of a solvent, as in chromatography
[from Latin elūtus rinsed out, from ēluere to wash clean, from luere to wash, LAVE]

elution n

Jim.

The stenographer from the trial we did in February has asked me to find a word for her. During your testimony, it sounds like you said, "the substance aloots (phonetic) through the machine..." Is that the right word? How is it spelled? Can you help, please? Thanks
